Introduction

Rigorous empirical analysis of the education system by adopting quantitative as well as participatory techniques is essential for strengthening educational planning. With the growing importance of evidence-based decentralized planning, the techniques related to planning such as diagnostic techniques, projection techniques, school mapping, micro planning, school improvement planning, students' flow analysis, internal efficiency of education system, etc. have acquired increasing importance in planning for educational development at various levels. The course, therefore, aims at developing an in-depth understanding of various techniques applied in planning for development of education. Accordingly, the course content in this phase is much more applied in nature. In other words, the learning from the course component transacted in this phase would be applied in the forms of simulations and field works to understand planning techniques and practices in education in India. ## Step 5 : Micro Planning in Education: Development of Village Education Plan ( 1 week)

Introduction

The focus in micro planning for education is more on the process by which local stakeholders may participate in ensuring that all children are attending school and the local school, where children of the village study, is functioning efficiently and community supports the school while the school becomes responsive and accountable towards the need of the local community. However, this process may lead to the development of village education plan which will focus on universal elementary education.

The village education plan may focus on developing a series of activities (i.e. intervention strategies) to be undertaken in the village for ensuring that all children attend the schools. The village plan may include the activities to be undertaken, the persons responsible for each activity and the time schedule of each activity. All data collected in the micro planning exercise may be very useful in developing village education plan which includes data collected through village schedule, schools schedule and the household survey schedule.
